ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to express my special thanks to my chairperson and major thesis advisor Assistant Professor Wanpen Eamjoy, for her scholarly guidance, encouragement, interest, and support. An equal thank goes to Assistant Professor Tippaporn Tungamnuay, my thesis co-advisor, for her kind support. I would also like to express my appreciation to my committee members, Assistant Professor, Dr. Prakin Suchaxaya, and Professor Zhao Shuzhong, for their meaningful suggestions and recommendations.

Sincere appreciation is extended to the people in my home university: Dr. He Sanguang, the president of China Medical University, Professor Liu Zhijun, former Dean of the Faculty of Nursing of China Medical University, Professor Yu Yanqiu, Dean of the Faculty of Nursing of China Medical University, for their recommendations to enter this program and support throughout my study.

I wish to give my special thanks to nursing specialists both at Chiang Mai University and China Medical university who help validating the instrument for data collection.

The China Medical Board of New York is acknowledged for providing financial support throughout the program. My deep appreciations also extended to every member of Faculty of Nursing, Chiang Mai University in Thailand and Faculty of Nursing, Xi'an Medical University in China who puts effort into this collaborative program continuously.

I extend my gratitude to the Nursing Service Departments in three teaching hospitals of China Medical University for their active support, and I also express my thanks to the nurses who take part in this study. Without their support and cooperation, my study would not have been successful.

My special thanks finally go to my family: my parents, my husband and daughter including my three younger sisters for their encouragement and support throughout the period of my study.
