ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The author would like to express his deep sincere gratitude and appreciation to his supervisor, Associate Professor Dr. Yuenyong Panjasawatwong for his valuable supervision, support, interest, encouragement, and critical reading of the manuscript.

The author is grateful to the National Research Council of Thailand (NRCT) and his parents for financial support.

Thanks are also extended to many people who assisted him during this study, in particular :

- Mr. Mayta Youngsnong and Mr. Songchai Suwantunthura who assisted many times during field work;

- Mr. Pipop Roppaiee (Department of Geological Sciences, Chiang Mai University) for making thin sections;

- Mr. William George Prewett and Mrs. Mayuree Promputtra (Department of Geological Sciences, Chiang Mai University) for their instructions in FeO and ignition loss determination;

- Miss. Boontrarika Srithai (University College London, England) for her assistance in mineral identification by electron microprobe technique;

- Mr. Somsak Sangsila, Mrs. Suchada Sripairojthikoon and Miss Sasithorn Panthong (Mineral Resources Analysis Division, Department of Mineral Resources, Bangkok), and Mr. Surachate Jungkasemchokchai and his colleagues (Material Testing Laboratory, Lampang Section, Electricity Generating Authority of Thailand) for their help in major and minor element analysis by XRF technique;

- Chemex Labs Ltd. (Canada) for the analyses of some certain trace elements and rare-earth elements by XRF and NAA techniques;

- Mr. Sydney Reib (Department of Geological Sciences, Chiang Mai University) for correcting grammar in Chapters 1 and 2;

- all graduate and undergraduate students of Department of Geological Sciences, Chiang Mai University for their help and encouragement, and

IV

- all members of Department of Geological Sciences, who have not been earlier mentioned, for their hospitality, companionship, support, encouragement and many facilities.

Finally, this thesis could not have been accomplished without the help and encouragement of his parents and his sister.
