ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to express my sincere gratitude to my thesis advisor, Associate Professor Chavee Baosoung, with whose scholarly guidance and motivation, thesis writing will never be a tedious and unrewarding activity, but a pleasure and excitement; with whose caring, support, and tolerance, living abroad alone will no longer be hard experience, but an unforgettable, meaningful memory in my life; with whose instruction and cultivation, rigorous and negative feedback from committee members as well as from situations in life will never be managed with avoidance and competition, but with invitation, grace and nondefensiveness; with whose role modeling, arrogance and obstinacy in my personality will finally be replaced by modesty.

Appreciation is also given to my coadvisor, Associate Professor Punpilai Sriareporn, my Chinese advisor, Professor, Cao Zuan-Sun for their guidance and encouragement.

My special appreciation is extended to my academic advisor, Associate Professor Lawan Somboon for her emotional and material support during my frustration in Chiang Mai. She made my living in Thailand more meaningful.

I gratefully acknowledge Assistant Professor, Dr. Linchong Pothiban who taught me nursing, nursing research and self-efficacy, who is always there ready for helping every Chinese student, who is loved, needed and believed in by her students.

My appreciation is extended to Dr. Sujitra Tiansawad, Associate Professor, Lawan Somboon, Dr. Khanokporn Sucamvang, Dr. Ouyporn Tonmukayakul, Dr. Sukanya Parisunyakul and for their recommendations and validating my instrument.

Chiang Mai University in Thailand is acknowledged for administrating the program. The appreciation is also given to China Medical Board of New York, for providing financial support for the study.

Sincere appreciation is extended to Professor Yang Yinghua, Dean of Faculty of Nursing of Shanghai Medical University (SMU), for her recommendation, assistant and support throughout my study, she made my dream come true.

I also would like to thank all expectant mothers for their cooperation in the study. May they all have healthy baby and happy family life.

Finally, I wish to express my appreciation to my parents for their socialization which gave me the perseverance to achieve my educational goal. I recognize the contribution of my husband, Mr. Chen ZhiQiang, I thank him for his constant love, understanding, support and encouragement.
