The completion of this thesis would mean nothing to me if I failed to acknowledge a number of people who have attributed a great deal of contribution as well as assistance for this research.

First of all, I would like to express my deep gratitude to both of my advisors : Assistant Professor Dr. Phachongkarn Phuvipadawat and Lecturer Torpong Wannawati. Without their pedagogical support in learning – taking methodology, the applicable ideas would not have triggered my determination. Specifically, thanks to Professor Dr. Phachongkarn Phuvipadawat who is my major inspiration in which my interest on an analysis of EFL Classroom discourse is orchestrated. Without her tremendous support, I would not have been capable enough to overcome all the hardship and frustration incurred. Again without her great consultation, I would not have gotten major opportunity to achieve. Additionally, I feel highly appreciated Assistant Professor Dr. Wanida Penkingarn, who has offered excellent consultation and encouragement.

Furthermore, I feel very thankful to my family and friends who always be present there when I need moral support. Specially, : Mrs.Ladda Laphimon, my beloved mother, my first teacher and my language inspiration. She could envisage my talent and ability in language and advised me to pursue my dreams, fulfill my needs by furthering my degree in TEFL. And I cannot definitely afford to skip to dedicate my success to my great father, Mr.Saichon Laphimon who through out his life time provides me strength, determination, and essentially financial support. Love to brothers and sister, and my sweet little angel : May. Last but not least, I feel strongly appreciated to Ms. Simmy Upara who is the best and the most supportive friend of mine who always offers me encouragement and empowers me to work on my thesis.
