

METHOD DEVELOPMENT FOR DETERMINATIONS OF
ASCORBIC ACID IN VITAMIN C TABLET AND
ACETIC ACID IN VINEGAR BY SEQUENTIAL
INJECTION SPECTROPHOTOMETRY

NARONG LENGHOR

A THESIS SUBMITTED TO THE GRADUATE SCHOOL IN PARTIAL FULFILLMENT OF THE REQUIRMENTS
FOR THE DEGREE OF
MASTER OF SCIENCE
IN CHEMISTRY

GRADUATE SCHOOL
CHIANGMAI UNIVERSITY

APRIL 2001

METHOD DEVELOPMENT FOR DETERMINATIONS OF
ASCORBIC ACID IN VITAMIN C TABLET AND
ACETIC ACID IN VINEGAR BY SEQUENTIAL
INJECTION SPECTROPHOTOMETRY

NARONG LENGHOR

THIS THESIS HAS BEEN APPROVED
TO BE A PARTIAL FULFILLMENT OF THE REQUIRMENTS
FOR THE DEGREE OF MASTER OF SCIENCE
IN CHEMISTRY

EXAMINING COMMITTEE

Kate GrudpanCHAIRMAN
Associate Professor Dr. Kate Grudpan

Jaroon JakmuneeMEMBER
Dr. Jaroon Jakmunee

Y. VaneesornMEMBER
Assistant Professor Dr. Yuthsak Vaneesorn

19 April 2001

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The author would like to express his sincere thanks and appreciation to his supervisor, Associate Professor Dr. Kate Grudpan, for his supervision, guidance, continual encouragement, assistance and financial support. The author would like to express his deep gratitude to Dr. Jaroon Jakmune, his another co-supervisor, for the valuable discussion, encouragement and assistance given during the course of this work.

The author is sincerely grateful to Mr. Michael Vilen and Dr. Rolf Sara of Turku Centre for Biotechnology in Finland for the SIA instruments given for this work.

The author is very much indebted to Mr. Subpachai Jayasvasti for his helpful and guidance, particularly advice on instrumentation.

The “Postgraduate Education and Research in Chemistry Program (PERCH)” and “Dr. Bruno Werdelmann Foundation” are acknowledged for the graduate scholarship granted to the author and so is the Thailand Toray Science and Technology Foundation for its contribution to this work.

The author is profoundly grateful to his family for their tender love, continual care and encouragement during his study in the M.S. program. Finally, the author would like to thank all of his friends in the room CB2426 and the many whose names are not here listed, and those who have one way or another contributed to the success of this work.

Narong Lenghor
April 2001