ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

There are many people to whom I wish to express my profound thanks for their invaluable contributions to my overall reading/experiences during my graduate studies for Master of Arts in Sustainable Development at Chiang Mai University.

First of all, I would like to be especially grateful my super-advisor, Dr. Chayan Vaddhanaphuti, for his valuable comments, enthusiasm guidance and constructive suggestions for my proposal writing and thesis work. His strong support gave me with the great self-confidence and motivation needed to finish my thesis. My sincerest thanks and appreciation is also extended to my other two advisors as well as committee members: Dr. Chusak Wittayapak and Pro. Phrek Gypmantasiri who provided excellent comments and suggests during the research design and writing of this thesis. In addition, I wish to thank Dr. Anan Ganjanapan for the fruitful discussions we had on my thesis topic, research problem, research questions and the conceptualization of my thesis proposal.

I would like to express my most heartfelt appreciation to Mr. H. Mallee, and Ms. Ma Jifang who created this study opportunity for me and financially supported me from the Ford Foundation Beijing Office. I would also like to express my grateful thank to Ms. Zheng Hongying who organized this fellowship at the Institution International Education (IIE).

The Regional Center of Social Science and Sustainable Development (RCSD) gave me an admirable chance to gain a lot of new ideals and several good friends. I would like to thank all of the staff and my classmates in RCSD for their friendship, sociability and cheerfulness on last two years. I am so lucky to have had this truly supportive environment in which I communicated with other overseas students, where we were able to share our knowledge and experiences. Most importantly I wish to thank our Chinese students, who are often help each other and share dinner with me.

However, my friends and helpers in Taijiang were also vitally important. As a degenerated Miao identity person, I obtained excellent help from Mr. Ban Guijiang, Mr. Lu Yihe, and Mr. Yang Cangzhi. When I worked in the Tageba community the three of them gave me access to many facilities and strong supports with both Miao language translation and organization of daily living. So I would like to give my sincerest thanks the three of them. Indeed, my study could not be accomplished without the input of these and other informants and farmers in the five Miao villages of Tageba, who provided me with information and also accommodation during my fieldwork in the research site. Their honesty and generosity can never be adequately compensated. At the same time, I am also grateful to the Taijiang Forest and Agricultural Bureau, Poverty Alleviation Office, County Government Office, Cultural Bureau, and Plantation Company for providing facilities and data for my research and also to the staffs of these places for their great help in the preparation of data for my research.

Finally, I would like to send my most strong appreciation to my family, especially to my wife, Liang Jun, for their indefatigable patience and encouragement in the last two years.
