ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

My graduate study and thesis have been finished based on the strong supports and great contribution from people and the institutions both in Thailand and China.

Fist of all, I would like to express my profound thanks and inmost appreciation to Dr. Uraivan Tan-Kim-Yong, my thesis supervisor as well as the chairperson of my thesis advisory committee, for her meaningful guidance, constructive suggestions, constant encouragement and kind care of my life in Chiang Mai University, which formed a strong foundation for this research. I am really enjoyed with her discussion, idea sharing during the improvement process of my study. My special thanks and appreciation also go to Dr. Anan Ganjanapan and Dr. Supaporn Nakhunlung for their kind acceptance in being my committee members and providing their invaluable comments and suggestions to guide me in conceptualizing the thesis proposal and development of this thesis. All of their constructive instruction, deep discussion and enthusiastic encouragement during the research preparation, fieldwork and thesis writing made a great contribution to the completion of this research project.

I also wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to Dr. Pinkaew Laungaramsri and Dr. Chusak Wittayapak for their creative and constructive discussion on my thesis proposal and thesis work. My heartfelt appreciation also go to Prof. Chen Deshou, for his invaluable guidance and constant encouragement that driven me as a rural development researcher. My sincere thanks also go to Assoc. Prof. Zhou Pidong, Assist. Prof. Pang Yongrong and Assoc. Prof. Ji Anlong, my friends and the team researchers during my fieldwork, for their fruitful secondhand data, efficient cooperation and creative discussions on my study.

My graduate study would not have been possibly completed without funding support from Ford Foundation and academic support from The Regional Center for Social Sciences and Sustainable Development (RCSD), Chiang Mai University. Particularly, special thanks are extended to Dr. Pong-In Rakariyatham, all of RCSD committee members, professors, and RCSD office directors Ajarn Benja Jirapatpimal and Kanchanan Kulpisithicharoen.

I am grateful for the support of the Integrated Rural Development Center (IRDC), at Guizhou Academy of Agricultural Sciences (GAAS), China. I am also grateful to Ms. Sun Qiu, the director of our institute, and all of my colleagues at IRDC for their spiritual support and valuable comments on this thesis. My thanks also go to Mr. Shi Ruiqin, Mr. Shi Guocai, Mr. Shi Qinhui, etc. all the kind villagers I lived with and met. Without their trust and generosity, my thesis could not have been completed.

All my Chinese friends have shown their genuine kindness and friendship during my study. Particularly, Chen Yahui, He Jun, Yang Congming, Ma Jianzhong, Zhang Jie and Huang Juan. I got fundamental spiritual support and learned a lot of experience and knowledge out of class from them. It was luck getting to know all of my RCSD friends during study in Chiang Mai. I also express my genuine thanks to their kind assistance.

Finally, for their greatest love, support, encouragement and understandings over the years, which cannot express by words, the study is dedicate to my families by expressing my deepest love for them.
