ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is my pleasure to extend sincere gratitude and acknowledge the help that I received while completing this graduate study.

Unexpressed gratitude goes primarily to my parents and to my little sister for their warm spiritual support and understanding throughout the period of my academic years at Chiang Mai University. Their support made it possible for me to keep pursuing my dream and achieve it with a result.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to all my professors for their help and advice during my study period. Profound appreciation goes to Dr. Chayan, my academic advisor as well as Chairman of the Thesis Committee for his immeasurable guidance and suggestions. I also would like to express my deep gratitude and thanks to Assoc. Prof. Sekshin, and to Asst. Prof. Dr. Ratchaneekorn, the members of my committee, for their help and encouragement. I would like to extend special gratitude and respect to Professor Ekamol for his inspiring suggestion, from which the original idea of this thesis was clarified.

My research was also made possible by the co-operation of various individuals: it is my obligation to express my gratitude to the villagers of the research sites in providing valuable information and friendly co-operation. Research fieldwork would never have been completed without the co-operation from the Chinese chairmen, the village headman, the assistant to the village headman and all the villagers in Ban Tham Santisuk. They gave me their valuable time to talk to me, and their opinions and information on which this study is primarily based. My research was facilitated by the superb co-operation of 12 informants and 151 students who co-operated to answer my questions from four classrooms in the Chinese school. Special gratitude goes to Mr. San for his generous assistance regarding translation work - from Chinese to Thai - and his efforts to provide as much information as he could; for Ms. Muei Srisombat for her magnificent offer in giving me a place to stay and treating me like one of her family members; for Ms. Cho Su-Hui for her support in giving me the chance to participate in various village events; and to Mr. Chan for his friendship and kind support he gave me each time I was in the village.

I am very much delighted to pay thanks for all my friends. My appreciation especially goes to Mr. Jeff and Mr. Michel for their help to edit my thesis and to Ms. Yoko Tai and Ms. Mari Suzuki for their cordial friendship. Lastly but more significantly, I would like to express my special gratitude for Mr. Kai-Uwe KOLAR for his deep understanding and eternal friendship.
