

THE TRANSFORMATION OF NORTHEASTERN CAMBODIA: THE POLITICS OF DEVELOPMENT IN AN ETHNIC MINORITY
COMMUNITY OF YAK KAOL, O'CHUM DISTRICT,
RATANAKIRI PROVINCE

SOVATHANA SENG

A THESIS SUBMITTED TO THE GRADUATE SCHOOL IN PARTIAL FULFILLMENT OF THE REQUIRMENTS FOR THE DEGREE OF MASTER OF ARTS IN SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

ลิขสิทธิ์มหาวิทยาลัยเชียงใหม่

Copyright© by Chiang Mai University

All rights reserved

GRADUATE SCHOOL
CHIANG MAI UNIVERSITY

JULY 2004

ISBN 974-658-908-3

THE TRANSFORMATION OF NORTHEASTERN CAMBODIA: THE
POLITICS OF DEVELOPMENT IN AN ETHNIC MINORITY
COMMUNITY OF YAK KAOL, O'CHUM DISTRICT,
RATANAKIRI PROVINCE

SOVATHANA SENG

A THESIS SUBMITTED TO THE GRADUATE SCHOOL IN PARTIAL
FULFILLMENT OF THE REQUIREMENTS FOR THE DEGREE
OF MASTER OF ARTS IN SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

THESIS EXAMINING COMMITTEE

.....
Lecturer Dr. Chayan Vaddhanaphuti

CHAIRPERSON

.....
Lecturer Dr. Chusak Wittayapak

MEMBER

.....
Lecturer Suriya Smutkupt

MEMBER

2 JULY 2004

©Copyright by Chiang Mai University

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I wish to express my profound and sincere gratitude to a number of people for their invaluable contributions in the process of shaping and producing my M.A. thesis and during my overall graduate studies in Sustainable Development at Chiang Mai University, Thailand.

First of all, I would like to most sincerely thank my thesis supervisor, Dr. Chayan Vaddhanaphuti, for his intellectual and academic guidance that steered my proposal writing and thesis work, and for his unique sense of concern, patience, enthusiastic encouragement and understanding. Special thanks and appreciation are extended to which committee member, Dr. Chusak Wittayapak who spent time providing valuable feedback on the conceptual framework for this thesis. I would like to acknowledge Lecturer Suriya Smutkupt, my external examiner, who provided thoughtful guidance for fieldwork, analysis and interpretation. This study closed by his frequent encouragements to 'just get it done' and 'keep typing everyday'. Once again I would like to extend my gratitude to both Dr. Chayan Vaddhanaphuti and Lecturer Suriya Smutkupt for taking the trouble to travel to Ratanakiri, my research site in Cambodia.

This thesis would not have been possible without the funding support of the Department of Technical and Economic Cooperation (DTEC), Thailand, and also funding support from the Faculty of Social Sciences, Chiang Mai University, to gather preliminary data in Cambodia.

I am grateful to Miss Kara Rickson, and Mr. Dophu Dukpa for their friendship and efficient and helpful editing of this thesis. I would also like to express gratitude to my colleagues in Cambodia who assisted and facilitated my fieldwork. I thank H.E Ly Pros, secretary of state of the Ministry of Rural Development, and Mr. Seng Narong, Director of the Department of Training and Research, and permanent secretary of IMC as well as colleagues from Department of Ethnic Minority for their encouragement and support. Mr. Roeun Sophanna and Moul Path also provided me with an overview of the legal governance system of the Seila Program. Thanks also to Dr. Hean Sokhum, Director of Center for Advanced Studies providing me his research guidance, and using his library facilities.

I am indebted to many people in Ratanakiri who allowed me to use their facilities and provided with key information. In particular Mr. Gordon Paterson and Heng Sokha, consultant and Director of NTFP, Mr. Graeme Brown, Coordinator of NNRM, Mr. Him Samith, Field Manager of CIDSE, Mr. Touch Toneth, Manager of PLG as well as his colleagues in that organization, and Mr. Phan Pearin, Director of the Department of Rural Development and his colleagues.

I owe the largest debt to the villagers of Yak Kaol community, and many other areas in Ratanakiri, who provided me with information and accommodation during my field research. Their honesty, generosity, and tolerance in regards to my constant questioning can never be adequately compensated.

During my studies at Chiang Mai University, I am lucky to have had a truly supportive, environment provided by regional center for social science and sustainable development academics and friends. Thanks go Mr. Joe Rickson, Mr. Tayan Raj Gurung, Mr. Bhim Raj Gurung, Mr. Kailash Pradhan and many Bhutanese friends, who have shared their thoughts and warm friendships including Mr. Jakkrit Sangkhamanee who translates my papers the abstract to Thai language. My appreciation is also extended to many of my Cambodian friends: Mr. Tang Sochetra, Mr. Ker Monthivuth, Mr. Thuon Try, Mr. Hay Rasmey, Mr. Mak Sithirith, Mr. Soa Sithoun, Miss Khem Chea Chackrya, Mr. Kep Poch and Miss Bun Sieng who have provide important friendships and an enjoyable social life around me.

Great credit must be given to my wife, Somana, who has granted me with much needed moral support and encouragement during my fieldwork and study period. Thanks to my loving mother for inspiring me with her love and care, and to both of my sisters and their families for their support and helping to care for my son, Voreaksak. I would like to thank my uncle, Seng Narong, and my father in-law, Mon Krat for their motivation and support. Finally, I wish to express my appreciation for the love and support of necessarily expenditure of my study, my late mother-in-law, who passed a way during my study, and to my late father and grandmother; I dedicate this thesis to them in loving memory.

Sovathana Seng