ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I wish to reveal my deepest sense of appreciation and gratefulness to my thesis advisor, Associate Professor Dr. Yuwadee Peerapornpisal for her kind supervision, her guidance and continual encouragement, and my deep thankfulness is also expressed to Professor Dr. Geoffrey A. Codd, Division of Environmental and Applied Biology, Biological Sciences Institute, School of Life Sciences, University of Dundee, UK, for his interest, advice, recommendations and consultation throughout this thesis and for kindly allowing the visit to and the use of his laboratory facility during the work on toxin analysis between July 2004 and January 2005.

I also express my gratitude to Associate Professor Dr. Werawan Ruangyuttikarn, Dr. Aparat Mahakhant and Assoc. Prof. Dr. Niwooti Whangchai for their helpful recommendations, their consultations and valuable suggestions about toxin analysis techniques, and for their kind supervision, provision of reading proposals and discussions for improvement throughout this thesis work.

I am deeply grateful to Assoc. Prof. Dr. Arnat Tancho for his valuable suggestions, his consultation about water and sediment analysis, and for his kind supervision, provision of reading proposals and his helpful comments on this thesis.

I deeply thank Dr. Tatporn Kunpradid for all his guidance and ideas for discussion on MVSP and for his helpful comments on this thesis.

I sincerely thank Dr. James S. Metcalf, Dr. Louise F. Morrison, Ms. Marianne Reilly, Ms. Fiona M. Young and Ms. Deborah L. Barnaby at the laboratory of Professor Dr. Geoffrey A. Codd in the United Kingdom for their helps, advices and recommendations regarding the toxin work.

Thanks to Ms. Arunee Wongkhao for attended assistance and many suggestions on statistical analysis during the environmental study.

Thanks to all members of the Applied Algal Research Laboratory (AARL), Department of Biology, Faculty of Science, Chiang Mai University for all their help on our field trips and for the most impressive feeling of friendship given to each other.

I wish to thank Lecturer Russell Kirk Hollis for final proof-reading, editing comments and suggestions.

I wish to acknowledge the financial support from the Royal Golden Jubilee PhD. Program (PHD/0144/2545, code: 4.B.CM/45/C.1) and the Thailand Research Fund .

Finally, I am deeply indebted to my father, Police Lieutenant Colonel Wanlop Prommana, my mother, Ms. Nongporn Prommana and my sister, Ms. Wichaporn Prommana for giving me my life, a warm family and a true sense of love. I am also indebted to all my relatives for their love, support and encouragement which has always been given to me.
