ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First of all, I worship the Buddha and all my Vipassana teachers. Then I wish to give my deep gratitude to all participants who taught me about childbirth.

Next, I wish to express my deepest gratitude, love and compassion to Associate Professor Dr. Kasara Sripichyakan, chairperson of the dissertation committee, for her love, guidance and inspiration throughout the process of study, accompanying with the dissertation committee Assistant Professor Dr. Patraporn Tungpunkom, Associate Professor Dr. Areewan Klunklin, and Associate Professor Dr. Holly Powell Kennedy, for invaluable suggestions and sympathy. This study would not be successful if I did not receive all of their effort.

My Deep gratitude also goes to Professor Dr. Wichit Srisuphan. Next, I wish to express my appreciation to Associate Professor Dr. Linchong Pothiban, Associate Professor Dr. Warunee Fongkaew, Assistant Professor Dr. Sujitra Tiansawad, Associate Professor Dr. Chavee Baosoung and the doctoral candidate Rudee Pungbangkadee. Then I wish to thank the Faculty of Nursing, Burapha University and my colleagues for supporting my doctoral study.

Last but not least, I profoundly appreciate my parents Srisawat and Homchan Tiranumphongvanich for infinite love, protection, forgiveness and nurture, accompanying with all family members for their love and encouragement.
