ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The accomplishment of this dissertation would not have been possible without assistance and support from numerous persons who have contributed to the dissertation and along my journey in the Ph.D program. I would like to express my sincere gratitude to these persons.

First and foremost, I would like to express my deepest gratitude to my dissertation committees. The Dean of Faculty of Nursing, Chiang Mai University, Associate Professor Dr. Wipada Kunaviktikul, my academic advisor and dissertation chair, for her thoughtful comments, constructive feedback, valuable suggestions, and special concerns of my life. My sincerest gratitude also goes to my co-advisor, Professor Dr. Philip Jacobs, Department of Public Health Science, University of Alberta, Canada, for his intellectual advice and encouragement throughout this study. I would also like to extend my thanks to my co-advisor Assistant Professor Dr. Thitinut Akkadechanant, for her critical guidance, and great encouragement to me. My appreciation is also extended to examining committee, Professor Emeritus Dr. Wichit Srisuphan, Assistant Professor Dr. Sujitra Tiansawad, Associate Professor Dr. Chawapornpan Chanprasit and Professor Dr. Robert L. Anders, for their useful suggestions and comments on my work at the time of the thesis defense and throughout this study.

A special thanks to Assistant Professor Dr. Greta G. Cummings, School of Nursing, University of Alberta, Canada, for her kindness to be my mentorship and gave me scholarly guidance and invaluable experiences. I also wish to express my sincere thank for Professor Dr. Beatrice J. Kalisch, School of Nursing, University of Michigan, United States, for her kindness to be another my mentorship and gave me great help in my proposal writing. I would like to express special thanks for administrators and the heads of departments in Maharaj Nakorn Chiang Mai Hospital for their cooperation and assistance along the data collection process. Special thanks to all experts, who are behind the scenes, for their contribution of validating instruments. I would like to express my deepest thank to all my research assistants, who provided me such a great help for collecting data.

My gratitude is extended to Assistant Professor Orapun Pumaporn, Ms. Panit Sakunwattana, Ms. Sukanya Pantong, Mr. Boonchoo Thepsoonton and Ms. Sriyud Srisuthep for their emotional and intangible supports that made me possible to continue my study smoothly from very beginning of my doctoral student life. I am deeply grateful to Faculty of Nursing, Chiang Mai University for allowing me the time to complete my study. Special thanks to my colleagues from the Department of Nursing Administration who take my workload while I have left for a long time of my study. I would like to thank the Ministry of Education and UMAP program for supporting the scholarship throughout my study.

Most importantly, this dissertation is dedicated to my family members who have most closely involved in the production of my dissertation, especially my beloved mother, sisters and brothers for their emotional supports, and deepest love. Specially, I wish to express my sincere appreciations to all my cohort friends including seniors, juniors, and same class for their kindness, friendship and help to me.
