ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to express my deep appreciation and gratitude to all those who helped supporting me to fulfill this thesis. I wish to express my sincere gratitude to all staff in the Department of Pharmacology, Faculty of Medicine, Chiang Mai University for giving me the fruitful opportunity to commence this thesis and providing me an excellent work environment during the past years.

I am deeply indebted to my supervisor Associate Professor Noppamas Rojanasthien whose help, stimulating suggestions, encouragement, and her extreme kindness truly inspired me throughout my thesis work. I am deeply grateful for her bounty that I surely can never forget.

I feel a deep sense of gratitude to Associate Professor Dr. Chaichan Sangdee who has closely supervised me with the final version of the thesis for English, grammar, and thesis writing style. Because of his suggestions and guidance, I have been able to successfully and joyfully finishing this otherwise tedious thesis writing.

I am greatly indebted to Associate Professor Dr. Supanimit Teekachunhatean for his invaluable guidance and thorough statistical analysis of the results section of my thesis.

I would like to thank Dr. Suwiwek Lipigorngoson and Dr. Puongtip Kunanusorn for their excellent instruction, training and helping me to acquire the ELISA system. In addition this thesis cannot be successful without Mrs. Nutthiya Hanprasertpong, an M.D., who help me with drug administration to and providing care for volunteers and Mr. Boonyium Kumsorn, Mr. Kongkaew Pichakan and Miss Siriluk Aunmuang who help me with blood collection. I wish to thank them for their help and support lending to my research work.

I would like to give my sincere thankfulness to all members of the supervisory graduate committee for valuable suggestions of this thesis.

The chain of my gratitude would definitely be incomplete if I forget to thank all of volunteers who were officially enrolled in this research. I would like to extend my sincere gratitude to them for their participation and compliance throughout the research.

Finally, my sentimental gratitude is offered to my dearest family and my friends for their love, care, inspiration, understanding and never ending support throughout my study.
