

TABLE OF CONTENT

	PAGE
Acknowledgement	iii
English Abstract	viii
Thai Abstract	x
List of Figures	xvii
List of Table	xix
List of VDO clips (in CD)	xx
CHAPTER 1 THE AMBIGUOUS SPHERE OF THE YUNNAN-BURMA BORDER	1
1.1 Beginning of Study: Research Questions	2
1.2 Argument Overview and the Aim of Dissertation	5
1.3 Research Methodology	12
1.3.1 Research Site	12
1.3.2 Unit of Analysis	13
1.3.3 Research Method: Multi-Sited Ethnography and Fieldwork	14
1.4 The Yunnan-Burma Frontier: An Overview of Dehong and its People	18
1.5 The Study in Brief	27
CHAPTER 2 REVIEW OF CONCEPTS AND RELEVANT STUDIES	31
2.1 Reviewing Previous Border Studies	31
2.2 Constructions of the Image of Modernity and Ethnic Identity	37
2.3 The Process of Translocality	41

TABLE OF CONTENT (CONTINUE)

	PAGE
2.3.1 Transnational Spaces and Transnationality	42
2.3.2 Translocality	42
2.4 The Conceptual Framework	44
2.5 Conclusion	48
 PART 1 FLEXIBLE ECONOMIC BORDER AND TAI PETTY TRADERS
 CHAPTER 3 A HISTORY OF OVERLAND TRADE: FROM COLONIALISM TO STATE FORMATION	 50
3.1 Early Overland Trade Activities on the Yunnan-Burma Frontier	52
3.1.1 The Tai and Overland Trade Activities on the Frontier	56
3.2 The Frontier and Overland Trade in a Colonial Context	63
3.3 Transformation of the Yunnan-Burma Border and Overland Trade	69
3.4 Conclusion	72
 CHAPTER 4 THE FLEXIBLE ECONOMIC BORDER AND DYNAMIC LIVES OF BORDER TRADE	 74
4.1 The Regulatory States and Transition to Economic border	77
4.1.1 China-Burma Trade: Transition to the 'Better' China	80
4.1.2 The Border Negotiated: Contraband and Local Agency's Strategies	82
4.1.3 The Economic Border and a Fear of Flows	87
4.2 Shan Tai Migrant Petty Traders Emerge within the Flexible Economic Border	90

TABLE OF CONTENT (CONTINUE)

	PAGE
4.2.1 Shan Tai Petty Traders and their Lives before Crossing the Border	93
4.2.2 Beyond the Border: Shan Tai Petty Traders, Opportunities and Constraints	95
4.3 Dehong Tai petty Traders emerge within Border Economic Development	100
4.3.1 Dehong Tai: Migrating from Rural to Urban	101
4.3.2 The Dehong Tai under Conditions of Economic Reform	104
4.3.3 A Comparison: Dehong Tai and Shan Tai Petty Traders under the Socio-Economic Conditions	108
4.4 Conclusion	109
CHAPTER 5 TAI PETTY TRADERS: SOCIAL PRACTICES IN CROSS-BORDER TRADE	111
5.1 Classifying Tai Petty Traders and Trading Systems	112
5.1.1 Trading Patterns of the Tai	115
5.2 Social Networks: Providing Strategies for a Better Economic Life	124
5.2.1 Horizontal Layers of Social Relationships: Pii Nong (Sibling) and Taiko (Peer) Relationships	125
5.2.2 Vertical Layers of Social Relationships: Konlong (Big Man) relationship	129
5.3 Bianmin Ren and Negotiating Strategies	131
5.4 Conclusion	135

TABLE OF CONTENT (CONTINUE)

	PAGE
PART 2 TRADE AND THE PROCESS OF TRANSLOCALITY: A REFLECTION OF ALTERNATIVE MODERNITIES
CHAPTER 6 CONTEXTUALIZING TAI CULTURE WITHIN THE HEGEMONY OF THE MODERN STATE	137
6.1 Cultural Hegemony: Tai Culture in Association with the Chinese	139
6.2 Pii Nong Tai Images	143
6.2.1 The Constructed Images of Pii Nong Tai and the Thai State	143
6.2.2 The Tai and Active Responses to the Tai Sibling Images	151
6.3 Conclusion	161
CHAPTER 7 GENDER AND THE TRANSFER OF CULTURAL KNOWLEDGE AMONG TAI PETTY TRADERS	163
7.1 The Tai Female Petty Traders and Gender Role Changes	165
7.2 The Process of Cultural Knowledge Transfer: Dressmaking Fashions	174
7.3 Conclusion	179
CHAPTER 8 DRESS AND CULTURAL STRATEGY, UPGRADING SOCIAL STATUS	181
8.1 Clothing and Social Meaning in Dehong Tai Society	184
8.2 Thai Dress and Commodities as Cultural Strategies	188
8.3 The Challenge to Cultural Hegemony: Under What Conditions?	194
8.4 Conclusion	196

TABLE OF CONTENT (CONTINUE)

	PAGE
CHAPTER 9 CONCLUSION	198
9.1 The Flexible Economic Border as an Ambiguous Sphere	199
9.2 The Process of Translocality and Ethnic Identity	201
9.3 Cultural Strategies and Alternative Modernities	202
9.4 The Flexibility of Gender roles and the Process of The Transfer of Cultural Knowledge	204
BIBLIOGRAPHY	205
GLOSSARY OF TAI WORDS AND PHRASES (DEHONG TAI AND SHAN TAI)	227
CURRICULUM VITAE	231

ลิขสิทธิ์มหาวิทยาลัยเชียงใหม่

Copyright© by Chiang Mai University

All rights reserved

LIST OF FIGURES

FIGURE	PAGE
1.1 Research site on the Yunnan-Burma Border	13
1.2 Map shows the Dehong Prefecture of China	19
1.3 Maps of the Dehong Prefecture and other border cities on the Yunnan- Burma border.	20
3.1 Map of Overland trade route along the Yunnan-Burma frontier of the late sixteenth century to eighteenth century	54
4.1 One of the local piers is used by local inhabitants for daily crossing the border.	84
4.2 The contraband motorbikes with goods were newly bought in Ruili of Chinese borderland.	85
4.3- 4.4 After the late 1990s, the Dehong Tai have sold their land to both local government for economic development and outsiders.	103
5.1 Clothes and cultural products from Thailand and the Shan state join the Chinese mass-produced products that have been transported into the central markets of Luxi for commerce.	114
5.2 A Shan Tai mobile peddler is selling shampoo and beauty creams from China, Burma and Thailand at a Poi (festival).	123
5.3 During Wad Kad once every five days in the Kad Mai , the Dehong Tai always come to buy new clothes for the Poi .	123
5.4 During religious Tai festivals, Shan Tai mobile peddlers usually sell Thai and Chinese products in mobile markets.	123
6.1- 6.2 Two notice boards posted at temples in Dehong, declaring that King Bumiphol of Thailand offered Kantin robes to the monks in Dehong.	156

LIST OF FIGURES (CONTINUE)

	PAGE
6.3 - 6.4 In 2005, there was a Poi Kantin or the Kantin ceremony operated by the Thai Royal Household at Wat Wuyun in Luxi.	157
6.5 The Multiple Nationalities Languages Television Station (MNLTS) broadcasts television programs in Dehong Tai language.	160
7.1 A Tai male helps his wife load the stocks into truck in every early morning, preparing to go to a mobile market.	172
7.2 Dehong Tai dressmaker who set up a clothes shop in the central market of Luxi.	174
8.1 A group of single Dehong Tai women in the past.	186
8.2 A group of married Dehong Tai women attend Poi Aokwa , the Buddhist Lent festival, in a temple in central Luxi.	186
8.3 A group of Dehong Tai people wear the same style and color of clothes identifying that they come from the same village.	187
8.4-8.5 In Kad Mai market, central Luxi of Yunnan, Thai traditional dresses are sell very well among Dehong Tai clients	188
8.6 Apart from rice, melons and watermelons are the most popular cash crops that the Dehong Tai cultivate for income.	195

LIST OF TABLES

TABLE	PAGE
1.1 Table of Ethnicity Statistics in the Dehong-Dai Jingpo Autonomous Prefecture	26
4.1 Volume of Border Trade in Yunnan's Prefectures from 1990–1995	79
4.2 Burma's Trade with China, 2000-2005	81
4.3 Chinese National and Provincial level Checkpoints on the Burmese Border	92
5.1 Traders classified by ethnicity	119

LIST OF VDO CLIPS (in CD)

VDO clips	PAGE
VDO clip 1 Cross-border trade in Dehong	3
VDO clip 2 Poi Kantin , a Festival in Dehong	157
VDO clip 3 The Multiple Nationalities Languages Television Station	159

ลิขสิทธิ์มหาวิทยาลัยเชียงใหม่
 Copyright© by Chiang Mai University
 All rights reserved