ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The completion of this thesis would be impossible without the help of many people, whom I would like to thank. I express my sincere thank to my advisors, Asst. Prof. Dr. Somporn Chantara, for her kind supervision, invaluable guidance, knowledge, constant inspiration and correction of problem throughout this study. Thanks are also giving to Prof. Munetsugu Kawashima for his valuable time as the examination chairperson of this thesis. I also deeply thank to Asst. Prof. Dr. Wanaruk Saipunkaew who is member of an examining committee.

Gratefully thanks to the Post Graduate Education Chiang Mai University for financial support. The Environmental Chemistry Research Laboratory (ECRL), Chemistry Department, Faculty of Science, Chiang Mai University for research facilities and Ms. Anantika Ratnamhin from International Centre for Research in Agro-forest (ICRAF), CMU for her great help in construction of the sampling map.

Finally, I give big thanks to my parents who give strong inspiration, support and always love me and to all my friends in the ECRL, who gave many helps and suggestions.
