ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This dissertation could not have been accomplished without the great support from many institutions and individuals. My greatest appreciation goes to The Thai Red Cross College of Nursing for offering me the valuable opportunity of the PhD. scholarship and allowing me to pursue a doctoral program.

I wish to acknowledge my indebtedness to the following persons for their contributions to the completion of this dissertation: Professor Emerita Dr. Wichit Srisuphan, chairperson for her constructive guidance; Assistant Professor Dr. Jarassri Yenbut for her thoughtful comments and warmth support; Associate Professor Dr. Sujitra Tiansawad for dedicating her time and intellectual guidance; Associate Professor Dr. Janice C. Humphreys for her insight supervision while studying at the University of California, San Francisco, USA; Associate Professor Dr. Linchong Pothiban for her excellence as a teacher and continued belief in the importance of this study; Associate Professor Dr. Kasara Sripichyakan for introducing me to violence concept and guiding me to develop research questions in the early phase of my dissertation; Assistant Professor Dr. Pimpaporn Klunklin for her comments on proposal development; and Professor Dr. Veene Jirapaet and Assistant Professor Dr. Achara Sukonthasarn for their scholarly comments to strengthen my dissertation.

My sincerest appreciation was given to the former directors of The Thai Red Cross College of Nursing, Assistant Professor Chuleporn Chawnmethagit and Assistant Professor Ankana Sriyaporn, who gave me an opportunity and financing portions of this study. My deep appreciation is extended to my colleagues at the Department of Pediatric Nursing, The Thai Red Cross College of Nursing for providing me full time study. With their trust, I was able to reach the point where I completed my doctoral program.

My field research in Rayong province was made possible by the great support of Mrs. Ichaya Suwanakul, the former director of Nursing Service, Rayong hospital. My thankfulness is extended to staff at child care centers of Natakhwon, Choengnoen, and Tapong subdistricts for their extraordinary welcoming to me and my research.

I am also thankful to Dr. Stephen J. Bavolek and Dr. Joel S. Milner for giving me permission to use their instruments and kindly sharing with me their insights about child abuse. My thank is extended to a panel of program reviewers: Associate Professor Srivieng Pairojkul, Lecturer Parichawan Chandarasiri, Assistant Professor Dr. Jirawan Tanwattanakul, Assistant Professor Srinuan Wiwatkunupakarn, and Assistant Professor Dr. Usanee Jintrawet for their clarification and useful suggestions on my intervention protocol. I also thank my back translators; Assistant Professor Dr. Usanee Jintrawet, Assistant Professor Dr. Acharaporn Sripusanapan, and Lecturer Dr. Nada Lukkahatai. My sincere thank goes to Mrs. Orapin Vilaijit for her art working on my parental booklet and Dr. William Vimuktayon for her assistance during research implementation. Also, thank Lecturer Dr. Petsunee Tunkjarouenkul, Lecturer Dr. Pratum Soivong, Lecturer Decha Tamdee, and Lecturer Jakapop Thatsuwon for their suggestions on data analysis.

Specifically, I wish to express my gratitude to Dr. Piriyalux Sirisupluxana, Dr. Chodchoi Wattana, and Dr. Temduang Choyhirun for their love as real sisters, long-time good friends, and invaluable assistance during my inquiry process. Finally, my gratitude is extended to my mom for her cheer and looking forward to seeing my accomplishment on doctoral degree.
