ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Master's degree that I did not expect to gain four years ago has now materialized. During the last four years I have passed from being an ordinary journalist with a great desire to study further, to a person with an opportunity to study abroad. I would therefore like to express my appreciation and deep gratitude to the following people, for their contributions, encouragement and involvement in my work.

First, I must thank my grandmother, who has constantly encouraged me to further my education and is proud of my success, while silently enduring tough family conditions without once mentioning our poverty. A special thank you must also go to Dr. Nay Win Maung, my journalism teacher, for his leadership and energetic encouragement of my postgraduate education. He sent his office staff, including myself, on our scholarship studies, without cutting our salaries, so that we could contribute our skills and knowledge to the future development of our country. He also devoted most of his time to continuous learning, and set a good example to all of us by going to Yale University to further his own studies.

I would like to give my heartfelt gratitude to the Heinrich Böll Foundation (HBF) for their generous scholarship award, to former Director Dr. Heik from HBF (now in South America), Yana (a former Director of HBF), Khun Mattana (now in Hungary), Olga, Yasmin and other staff for all their support. My heartfelt gratitude also goes to Khun Olga for her care and magnificent positive spirit when attending to my external interests, for treating all of us like members of her family and for providing support when needed. I must also thank HBF for extending my scholarship period for another year, something which gave me peace of mind and enabled me to focus on writing my thesis.

I am greatly indebted to Dr. Chayan at the Regional Center for Social Science and Sustainable Development (RCSD) for his patience, flexibility, judgment and precious advice during my thesis preparation. Without his encouragement and constant guidance, I could not have finished writing this paper - my thanks also goes to him for his understanding and forgiveness regarding my external work, such as political blogging and writing articles.

As well as my advisor, I would also like to thank others at RCSD, including Dr. Yos Santasombat, Dr. Anan Ganjanapan, Ajarn Phrek Gypmantasiri, Ajarn Ekamol, Dr. Chusak Riittayapak, Dr. Wasan, Dr. Jamaree Chienthong, Dr. Santita Ganjanapan and Dr. Pinkaew Laungaramsri, for their committed teachings, those that maintained my interest in Social Science issues while studying at Chiang Mai University, and to Mr. Gary Morrison for editing my thesis in good time.

Thanks must also go to the office staff at RCSD and Graduate School for their help with my admission matters, and, without exception, a deep sense of gratitude also goes to my classmates: Marlar and Kyaw Kyaw Tun (Myanmar), Fred (Philippines), May (China), Sephat and Dina (Cambodia), Phillip and David (USA), and Phuc (Vietnam), for their demonstrations of love, kindness, understanding, friendship and enjoyment during my school days. I also give my thanks to all the Myanmar students from other faculties for their kindness, encouragement and collaboration on all events and celebrations, those that enabled me to introduce Myanmar culture and traditional customs to my colleagues.

I must express my thanks to the Kayan author Khon Eden Phan, to Kubo (a Japanese doctoral student who is doing research on the Karenni) and the Kayan journalists, Say Reh Soe and Phe Du for all their excellent suggestions on my thesis proposal. I also thank the Kayan (Padaung) girl, Mu Yaw for her assistance during my field research in Huay Pu Keng. My grateful appreciation also goes to Mu Bi - for her assistance, Ko Lawki and Ma Mu Rai for providing me with a home during my stay in Huay Pu Keng, to all the Huay Pu Keng villagers, Ko Kereh and his wife, and Nhe Law and other office staff for their hospitality, cordiality and assistance.

Last but not least, I must thank Ms. Kea for her sympathy, benevolence and kindheartedness; values that helped me finish my Master's degree on time and with few problems. I cannot end without thanking to her.
