ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The completion of this independent study for my Master of Arts in the English Department in Faculty of Humanities at Chiang Mai University has been made possible due to the assistance and support from many people whom I would like to express my sincere thanks.

Firstly, I would like to thank God for giving me everything in my life-all the successes, the happiness, and even the sad times for they have been very valuable in helping me to become stronger and wiser. I am grateful to my family for their support, understanding, and sympathy.

Secondly, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to my advisor, Assoc. Prof. Dr. Saranya Savetamalya for her kindness, understanding, beneficial advice and encouragement. I would also like to recognize two other committee members, Asst. Prof. Wichian Sunitham and Lect. Sakorn Ruanklai for their beneficial advice and guidance.

Special thanks to my friends NantiraTansom (Oui) who conceived of the idea of continued study at the graduate level, and Phornthip Srinutham (Oil) and Eric Towell for their helpful suggestions and support.

Last but not least, I hope this study will be beneficial to the readers by contributing to their understanding the verbal techniques used by the printed media.
