ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I would like to express my sincere gratitude to leaderships and staffs of Veterinary Public Health Centre for Asia Pacific, Faculty of Veterinary Medicine, Chiang Mai University and The Department of International Animal Health, Freie Universität Berlin for making possible MVPH course to allow me to have a chance to spend a great 2 years in academic, scientific life and open mind to new knowledge from all respected lecturers, joyful friends and cultures.

I would like to express my deep appreciation to my supervisors, Prof. Dr. Reinhard Fries, Freie Universität Berlin and Dr. Tongkorn Meeyam, Faculty of Veterinary Medicine- Chiang Mai University, who are dedicated and enthusiastic to guided and help me complete this thesis.

I would like to grateful to Assoc. Prof. Dr. Lertrak Srikitjakarn, Dean of Faculty of Veterinary Medicine, CMU, Asst. Prof, Dr. Khwanchai Kreausukon, Prof. Dr. Karl-Hans Zessin, Dr. Maximillian Baumann for the leading and operating the nice and advantageous course. I would like to thank Dr. Peter Paulsen and Institute for Meat Hygiene, Meat Technology and Food Science, University of Veterinary Medicine, Vienna-Austria. I would like to extend my appreciations to Hanoi School of Public Health for accepting me to undertake this program. A special gratitude should go to Prof. Dr. Le Vu Anh (Dean of Hanoi School of Public Health (HSPH)) and Dr. Nguyen Viet Hung (Vice director of Center for Public Health and Ecosystem Research-HSPH) for their great support and encourage throughout the study time.

I would like to acknowledge Dr. Fred Unger (International Livestock Research Institute (ILRI)), Asst. Prof. Dr. Duangporn Pichpol (FVM-CMU), Dr. Veerasak Punyapornwithaya (FVM-CMU) and Assoc. Prof. Dr. Nguyen Thanh Huong (HSPH) for supervision and providing me with valuable advices and assistance to complete my research work.

I would not have been able to attend and finish the course without the financial support from The U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). I would like to express my sincere thank to the USAID, Dr. Stanley Fenwick and his colleagues. I would like to thank EcoZD (ILRI - IDRC (International Development Research Centre) and EHRC (Ecohealth, Onehealth Resource Centre), Chiang Mai University) project for the research financial support.

I am thankful to the Department of Veterinary Hygiene, NIVR, Vietnam; Dr. Pham Thi Ngoc and staffs for supporting me in my research works. I am also grateful to Ms. Herlinde Irsigler and staffs in Laboratory of Institute of Meat Hygiene and Technology, Faculty of Veterinary Medicine, FU Berlin as well as the staffs in Laboratory in Faculty of Veterinary Medicine, CMU for training and serotyping analyses. I would like to thank veterinary staffs in Hung Yen province and in Van Lam, Van Giang and My Hao districts to help me in the field work as well as the support and collaboration of slaughterhouse owner, workers and pork sellers in study sites.

I would like to thank all my classmates (in a nice “family”), particularly Samuel Joseph Manglapus Castro and Farong Xu, for sharing necessary cooperation knowledge and supports as well as enjoyable times.

Last but not least, to my beloved wife, Nguyen Thi Nga, who had supported from difficulties to me to study. I also want to say love with softly hold and kiss to my loved son, Dang Tuan Long, from him that I had got much energetic to try my best. I would like to express my deeply respect and dearness to my family: my grandparents, my parents and my younger and older brothers, sister and nieces, nephews have given me a great encourage to complete the program.
