ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The accomplishment of this thesis has been an excellent inspired journey and an imperative milestone in my academic career. I could not have any success on this voyage and studied abroad without physical and emotional supports of my professors, colleagues, friends and my family.

First and foremost, I would like to express my genuine gratitude to the Minister of Health and all responsible persons from the Ministry of Health (MOH), the Republic of the Union of Myanmar for their supports to study in Thailand. I have also a desire for grateful appreciation to my department especially Director General, Director (Nursing Division), and all responsible personnel from the Department of Medical Science, Ministry of Health (MOH) for their encouragement. Additionally, I am wholehearted on expressing thanks to the Dean and all faculty members of the Faculty of Nursing and the Graduate School, Chiang Mai University for their invaluable lending a hand and giving me an opportunity to learn not only study but also life skills. I am honestly thankful to the China Medical Board as a main financial support to study in Master of Nursing Administration (International program).

Especially, I am inclined to be pleased about my adorable major advisor Assistant Professor Dr. Thitinut Akkadechanunt for her honorable support, encouragement, and intimate supervision in carrying out my thesis. This study would not have been comprehensive without her scholarly supports. I would like to show gratitude to my co-advisor, Associate Professor Dr. Ratanawadee Chontawan, for her valuable advice and being as a facilitator for my thesis. Moreover, I would like to express gratefulness to all the teachers from both Nursing Administration program for sharing their knowledge and expertise to me throughout the program.

I would like to say special thanks to all the members of Thesis Proposal Defense Committee and Thesis Defense Committee for their expert review, discussion and excellent comments to my project to be a proficient one from different point of views.

Moreover, I would like show my appreciation to two expert persons: Professor Dr. Nang Htawn Hla, President, Myanmar Nurse and Midwife Association, the Republic of the Union of Myanmar; and Miss. Marisa Guptarak, International coordinator, Faculty of Nursing, Chiang Mai University for their back-translation of the instruments. In addition, I also would like to express thankfulness to Professor Dr. Dennis W. Organ, Professor of Management at the Kelley School of Business, Indiana University; and Professor Dr. John F. Milliman, College of Business and Administration, University of Colorado at Colorado Springs, for permission to utilize their instruments in this study.

Special appreciation to the Research Ethics Committee, Faculty of Nursing, Chiang Mai University; and the Ethical and Research Committee, University of Nursing (Yangon), the Republic of the Union of Myanmar for their approval after ethically reviewed this study. Additional indispensable persons for my thesis are Medical Superintendent and Matron who support me to conduct at their hospital and I also would like to express gratitude to all the nurses from four general hospitals for willingly participate in this study.

I am grateful to my seniors and all of my friends for making me feel taken care of and support each other regardless of the distance between us.

I would like to dedicate my thesis to my late Dad, U Sein Myint for his love and encouragement enhance me more strengthen and honor in my life. I would like to express heartily gratitude to my Mom for her endless love and support for me to complete this thesis. The last but not the least, I would like to show appreciation to my husband for his affection and sacrifice throughout the period of studying abroad.
