ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This dissertation would not have been consummated without the assistance, support, and inspiritment of many sublime persons. My deep gratitude intends to Assistant Professor Dr. Sirirat Panuthai, my academic and dissertation advisor, Assistant Professor Dr. Khanokporn Sucamvang, and Associate Professor Dr. Duangruedee Lasuka my academics and co-advisors for their suggestions, recommendations, and encouragements. A very special appreciation is rightly due to Professor Sutthichai Jitapunkul, my co-advisor for his inspiritment, insightful suggestions and subsidiary guidance. I would withal relish to elongate my thanks to Associate Professor Dr. Linchong Pothiban and Assistant Professor Dr. Seepan Kantawang for their scholarly guidance, thoughtful comments, constructive feedback, encouragement, support, patience and careful attention to details during learning and work of this dissertation.

My gratefulness is extended to Professor Sasipat Yodpet, Associate Professor Dr. Jiraporn Kespichayawattana, Associate Professor Dr. Yupapin Sirapo-Ngam, Associate Professor Prakong Intarasombat, and Manoo Vathisunthorn, M.D., my panel of experts for clarification and suggestions regarding the dissertation instruments. I wish to express gratitude to Assistant Professor Dr. Virapun Wirojratana, Faculty of Nursing, Mahidol University for permission to use the Preparedness for Caregiving Scale and also thanks to Professor Dr. Linda Phillips, Director Center for Advancement of Gerontological Nursing Science at the University of California Los Angeles (UCLA), Los Angeles, USA., for permission to use the QUALCARE scale for modified as Quality of Care Assessment Scale and I also thank Ms. Potchanart Emsiranant and Ms. Debbie Lertkulvanich to translate and back translations for Quality of Care Assessment Scale. I also wish to give the special thanks to my Instructor Jakkapob Dhatsuwan for guiding in the statistical analysis and interpretation.

A special thank goes to all staff nurses and health volunteers who helped in recruiting and collecting data during the study and I also would like to extend my recognition to all participants for their cooperation in the study in Ampoe Bang Pa-In, Phra Nakhon Si Ayutthaya Province and special thanks to Dr. Rasee Leenakul, the Chief Nurse Sawanpracharak Hospital, Nakhorn Sawan Province who supported and provided scholarly guidance during my studying. I wish to give the special thanks to my colleagues, Ramathibodi School of Nursing, Faculty of Medicine Ramathibodi Hospital, Mahidol University for providing me fulltime study and assisting me with workload during my doctoral studies. Also, my appreciation is extended to my doctoral classmates and all friends for sharing valuable experiences, friendships, and assistance during my studying at Chiang Mai University. I also thank to the Office of the Higher Education Commission, Thailand, Faculty of Nursing and Graduate School, Chiang Mai University which provided partial funding of my study.

Most importantly, I also thank my parent, mother-in law, my husband, my older sister and grandchild for their love, understanding, encouragement, and support, which helped me accomplish throughout the period of my study.
