ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This dissertation became more a space of learning than merely a writing product. It attracts a community of scholars, local people and friends as well as the writer himself over different time-space. I was interested in creating an open, inviting and stimulating space, in which scholars, local people, friends and I could become fully engaged in conversations and ideas, and in the excitement of sharing new experiences. Without these people's contributions, my dissertation would have been an empty space.

I would like to express my deepest appreciation to my committee chairperson, Assistant Professor Dr. Chusak Wittayapak, for his excellent attitude, constructive comments and wisdom. He continually and convincingly conveyed a spirit of adventure with regard to my dissertation and scholarship.

I would also like to thank my committee members, Dr. Amporn Jirattikorn and Associate Professor Dr. Jamaree Chiengthong, whose works demonstrated to me that a concern for anthropology, sociology and ethnography. They also provided helpful suggestions and critical dialogues. In addition, a special thank you should go to Associate Professor Dr. Wattana Sugunnasil who introduced me the concepts of space, and also showed such enthusiasm for teaching my reading course and helping me with my literature review.

I am grateful to Assistant Professor Dr. Kanokwan Manorom for being chairperson of my examining committee, and Dr. Wasan Panyakaew for being my external examination committee member. They should be given great credit for their helpful comments and for helping to formulate the thesis argument. I need to also thank Assistant Professor Dr. Pitch Pongsawat, for his dissertation and for providing me the inspiration for this work.

I am also thankful to Chulalongkorn University's Institute of Thai Studies, for both the research grant and for publishing my article. I need to thank Louis Delaporte and Francis Granier at White Lotus Publications and Richard W. Hughes at RWH Publishing for giving me permission to use their pictures. I thank National University of Singapore's The Asia Research Institute (ARI) for providing me a PhD student research fellowship. I would also like to thank my friends for their moral support during the lonely time and long journey experienced while writing this dissertation. I am particularly grateful to the Chanthaburi gem traders and Myanmar ethnic CDs sellers who were willing to spend their times talking to me during my fieldwork in Mae Sai.

Last, I owe a great debt to my family; words cannot express how grateful I am to my mother and father for all of the sacrifices they have made on my behalf. As a PhD student, who had to study for five and a half years, I sometimes did not have enough time to visit them at home and take care of them. Despite this, my mother's prayers helped revitalize my heart and soul during times of hardship and confusion. I hope that my research work would make an academic contribution to society.
