ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This thesis leads to the success with generosity from my advisor, Assoc. Prof. Dr. Benchaphun Ekasingh, for support and valuable advice from proposal development, data collection, questionnaire design, data analysis to writing the thesis. The advice obtained from Assoc. Prof. Dr. Benchaphun Ekasingh was valuable and highly appreciated.

I would like to thank Assoc. Prof. Nongluck Supanchaimat from Khon Kaen University for her kind acceptance to be the chairman in my dissertation examination.

I would like to express my profound gratitude and deep regard to my committee members, Asst. Prof. Dr. Chanchai Sangchyoswat, who suggested the creation of Bayesian Belief Network model, Lect. Dr. Jirawan Kitchaicharoen, who taught me factor analysis, Asst. Prof. Dr. Budsara Limnirunkul, who advised the framework of supply chain management, and Dr. Panomsak Promburom, who suggested the participatory approach.

Moreover, I would like to show my gratitude to Mr. Chalernpol Samranpong, who taught Bayesian Belief Networks from the very beginning to analysis process, contributing to evaluation in management efficiency models of GAP vegetable supply chain.

Thanks also go to Maejo University for providing funds for the dissertation and the Office of Agricultural Research Region 1 for supporting the data base of farmers who produced vegetables under GAP standard in Chiang Mai Province.

Finally, I would like to express my deepest gratitude and love to my parents who supported and encouraged me to carry out my dissertation successfully. Any errors and faults remain my own.
