My sincere gratitude also goes to the administration, faculties, researchers and all staff members from the two universities, the sample group in the study, who obligingly responded to the questionnaires and actively participated in the implementation of the assessment model of research management for private universities.

Likewise, I wholeheartedly appreciate the faculties and my fellow post-graduate students in the Department of Educational Research and Development, the Faculty of Education, Chiang Mai University, whose benevolence and encouragement have actualized this remarkable doctoral dissertation.

Last but not least, I am exceedingly indebted to my parents who are now resting in peace. Loving memories of them did strengthen my motivation tremendously throughout my doctoral study program.
