ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

At this time, I would like to show my deep gratitude to the people who have helped me complete one of the most important milestones of my education path. Regardless of how small or large, these contributions have aided in the completion of my thesis. Please allow me to trace the beginning of my thesis back to July 2014.

First, I need to thank to The Consortium of Development Studies in Southeast Asia, The Regional Center for Social Sciences, and Sustainable Development along with the program's personnel forces for offering me a 22-month Master's Degree in Social Science (Development Studies) at the Faculty of Social Sciences, Chiang Mai University. This allowed me to pursue my passion for studying after two years of failing to find my true interests. This program trained me to become a capable and independent learner and I am grateful to my knowledgeable, enthusiastic, and helpful professors. I would like to thank Lect. Dr. Chayan Vaddhanaphuti and his coordinator Ms. Kanchana Kulpisithicharoen for the program. I am so satisfied with my studies.

Each professor has taught me different aspects of becoming an independent and critical thinker. They all sought to help me learn. The professor who had the greatest impact on my mindset is Prof. Emeritus. Dr. Anan Ganjanapan. I attended his classes for three semesters because of his humorous, creative, and joyful teaching styles. His concepts of multiplicity and negotiation were powerful and broadened my narrow view of the world, which has been diversely constructed in politics. I would like to thank him for inspiring me and empowering me to keep learning and his ideas to help the minority to create the power for the weak. Prof. Emeritus Dr. Anan has been my advisor since the third semester. His fruitful knowledge completed my thesis in conceptualization. He spent many hours trying to help me conceptualize my findings. He trained me to read, think, and connect critically.

The second teacher is Asst. Prof. Dr. Chusak Wittayapak. He was so supportive with his recommendation letters, his guidance with administrative procedures, and anything else I needed help with. The third teacher is Dr. Alexandra Denes. I really appreciate all the hard work she has done to help me. I am eternally grateful to her for taking the time to correct my English, methodology, as well as helping me to construct statements. She was my advisor during the second semester. Without her help, I would not have been able to finish my thesis proposal or attend the international conference. Moreover, she always supported me with writing thesis proposal despite the limited time. She taught me to be a critical writer with well-prepared methodology and logical structure in my writing. The fourth teacher is Prof. Dr. Yos Santasombat. His clear, logical, and straightforward comments on my questions and work were good lessons for me to follow. I would like to show my gratitude for his recommendation letters. I did not have many opportunities to join his classes but it was always a pleasure to be his student. I want to show my gratitude for Ajarn Ekamonl's support me in studying. I would also like to thank Dr. Hoshino Satoshi for his guidance, support, and dedication during my 3-months in Graduate School of Agriculture, Kyoto University. I deeply appreciate all the field trips and hard work he did to support my topic.

Secondly, I would like to show my deep gratitude to the people who helped me conduct my research in An Giang Province. The first person is Mr. Nguyễn Xuân Định, the Head of International Cooperation Department, Vietnam Farmer Union. His enthusiasm and generosity to offer help for an unknown student like me was incredibly kind. Without his help, I could not even begin my research. The second person is Mr. Nguyễn Thanh Tùng, the marketing manager and The Provincial Leader of Farmer Union. I cannot thank him enough for helping me. Mr. Tùng directly introduced me to farmers and took care of me during my research time on site. Thanks to his credibility, farmers were happy to help me collect data. Furthermore, he also showed me how agritourism in An Giang functioned and invited me to his activities such as working with farmers, travel agencies, and other partners. Together with Mr. Tùng, Ms. Đoàn Kim Hòa, his assistant, also guided me when I needed it. I also want to thank to Mr. Trần Anh Châu, the chairperson of Farmer Union in Mỹ Hòa Hưng, who was enthusiastic to help me in information. Lastly, I wholeheartedly appreciate the help of families of Mrs. Trần Thị Trúc Mai, Mr. Tám Hồ, and Mr. Lê Văn Huệ for me. They took care of me and supported me in contacting other stakeholders. I could not name all people, who helped me in the field. Please, forgive me if I miss anyone.

This acknowledgement is not enough to show how grateful I am to the people who have helped me complete my thesis. There are many names, which I could not mention, including many teachers who advised me, Ph.D. students who helped me out, and other administrative staff. Without them, my work could have never been completed. Finally, I am eternally grateful to my family for loving me. Therefore, I could have an opportunity to receive other gentle help to improve my capacity in order to dedicate my life for a better society. Last but not least, I want to thank to Associate Prof. Dr. Teresa Sobieszczyk in Sociology Department, The University of Montana for her help and support me in all terms of my education path.
