First and foremost I want to thank The Regional Center for Social Science and Sustainable Development (RCSD) and the Faculty of Social Science at Chiang Mai University for providing to me the opportunity to join the Master of Arts program where I pursued my degree and research.

I wish to thank my thesis advisor Assistant Professor Dr. Kwanchewan Buadaeng of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Chiang Mai University. The door to Prof. Buadaeng's office was always open whenever I encountered difficulties or had questions about my research. Her guidance helped me immeasurably throughout the thesis writing and research process and she consistently encouraged me to make this paper my own work while helpfully steering me in the right direction whenever she thought I needed further direction. In addition to my advisor I want to thank my thesis committee, Lect. Dr. Rangsimawongwana and Lect. Dr. Arratee Ayuttacorn for their encouragement and insightful comments. I am also exceptionally thankful to my external examiner Associate Professor Dr. Paul Cohen for his time and precise comments. My sincere appreciation also goes to Prof. Dr. Chayan Vaddhanaphuti, Prof. Dr. Anan Ganjanapan, Asst. Prof. Dr. Chusak Wattayapak, Prof. Dr. Yos Santasombat, Dr. Prasit Leepreecha, Dr. Amporn Jirattikorn, Dr. Mukdawan Sakboon and Dr. Panadda Boonyasaranai who taught me and freely offered academic knowledge and advice which I hope will guide me in my future career and life.

I also want to thank the Myanmar office of the Heinrich Boell Stiftung (HBS) for substantial funding support and the HBS staffs who closely monitored and assisted me in my research. In addition, I want to thank all staff of the RCSD for their help in academic affairs. I have enjoyed a great opportunity to meet my classmates who are from multicultural backgrounds and with whom I shared many experiences. The time we spent together and the knowledge we gained together as well as their caring and support will always remain with me.

I would also like to acknowledge the KIO Education Department, officers and staff who provided tremendous assistance during my field data collection. I am also thankful to the people of the Jeyang IDPs camp who allowed me to intrude without invitation. Their powerful stories and accounts not only permitted me to conduct field experience research but also allowed me to see the broader themes of their lives, struggles and significant adjustments they made at every moment. I am grateful for their generosity and kindness.

Last but not least, I want to thank my family and relatives for helping and supporting me with unfailing continuous encouragement throughout my years of study and through the process of researching and writing this thesis. My work is a product of the profound and cherished assistance from so many people. This accomplishment would not have been possible without them. Thank you.
