ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Writing a note of acknowledgment on my thesis gives me the opportunity to convey my deepest gratitude and respect to the staff of Rural Development Policy and Theory (490a). It has been a wonderful period of time, learning new scientific knowledge, developing new personal experience, interacting with my supervisors and other people who are interested on the topic. I would like to use this opportunity to thank the people who supported me to break through the rough study periods and able to finish it.

First I would like to express my deepest gratitude to my major advisor Dr. Khalid Siddig for creating a wonderful working environment with his staff members. Dr. Khalid has been supportive and inspiring since I began working on my master thesis. His comments and technical support were crucial in shaping and directing the whole thesis. I would also like to thank my second supervisor Dr. Anupong Wongchai from Chiang Mai University for his diligent and critical comments.

I would particularly like to appreciate Dr. Ling Yee Khor for his time and energy reading the whole thesis and giving useful comments and remarks that are valuable to the thesis. His motivation, engagement, patience and excellent cooperation helped me all the time working consistently on the thesis. Dr. Ling Yee Khor gave me the moral support and the freedom to move on with my writings. He is exceptionally kind and mentor in many ways. I would also like to acknowledge Dr. Tim Loos for providing me with the necessary data sets that kept me focused and sometimes commenting on the results when necessary. It was a great help and rewarding. I want to extend my gratitude to the people who carry out the data collection work for their magnificent work. My deepest respect goes to the interviewees who shared their individual life with us. I am thankful for my friends, who shared their time with me. We had a good time helping each other by deliberating over our problems during the analysis. I was grateful to be part of the 490a community.

Finally I want to thank Dr. Daruni Naphrom from Chiang Mai University for her kind words and encouragement. Thank you my family for your moral support during the whole study period.
