
CHINESE LINGUISTICS

An Introduction

Giorgio Francesco Arcodia | Bianca Basciano
馬振國 白夏儂

สำนักหอสมุด มหาวิทยาลัยเชียงใหม่
b16708003
O 12579841
i 22688845

Chinese Linguistics

An Introduction

GIORGIO FRANCESCO ARCODIA (馬振國)
BIANCA BASCIANO (白夏儂)

สำนักหอสมุดมหาวิทยาลัยเชียงใหม่
CHIANG MAI UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Preface to the English edition ix
List of abbreviations xiii
Periodization of Chinese history xv

1 Introduction 1
1.1 What is 'Chinese linguistics'? 1
1.2 Aims and scope of this book 3
1.3 Organization of this book 4

2 Sinitic languages: A historical and typological overview 6
2.1 'Chinese', 'dialects', and 'Sinitic languages' 6
2.2 A short history of Chinese 13
2.2.1 Language in pre-imperial China 13
2.2.2 The Qin unification, language, and writing 17
2.2.3 'Standard' varieties in imperial China 23
2.2.4 The birth of a national language 29
2.2.5 The periodization of Chinese 37
2.3 The classification of Sinitic languages 43
2.3.1 Sinitic languages: genealogy and typology 44
2.3.2 The structure of the Sinitic family 54

3 Chinese writing 62
3.1 Chinese characters 62
3.1.1 The classification of Chinese characters 62
3.1.2 Quantitative data 68
3.2 A short history of Chinese writing 71
3.2.1 Early attestations of writing in China 71
3.2.2 Writing in imperial China 75
3.2.3 Writing in republican China: phonetization vs. simplification 80

3.3 Writing other languages 87
3.3.1 Writing Chinese dialects 87
3.3.2 The Chū' Nôm and Sawndip writing systems 100

4 The sounds of Chinese 105

4.1 Historical phonology 105
4.1.1 The reconstruction of earlier stages of Chinese 105
4.1.2 Old Chinese 116
4.1.3 Middle Chinese 120
4.1.4 Early Mandarin 123

4.2 The phonology of modern Sinitic languages 126
4.2.1 Modern Standard Chinese 128
4.2.2 Mandarin and Jin 135
4.2.3 Wu 138
4.2.4 Xiang 140
4.2.5 Gan 141
4.2.6 Hakka 142
4.2.7 Yue 144
4.2.8 Min 145
4.2.9 Hui, Pinghua, and unclassified patois 147

5 Morphology and the lexicon 150

5.1 The morphology of Chinese 150
5.1.1 Morphemes and words 151
5.1.2 Word formation in Old and Middle Chinese 157
5.1.3 Word formation in Premodern and Modern Chinese 166
5.1.3.1 Compounding 167
5.1.3.2 Derivation 173
5.1.3.3 Reduplication 176
5.1.3.4 Abbreviation 183
5.1.3.5 Nonconcatenative morphology 187

5.2 Foreign words in the Chinese lexicon 191
5.2.1 The evolution of the lexicon after the Opium Wars 192

5.3 Recent trends in Chinese word formation 197
5.3.1 Chinese 'buzzwords' (流行語 liúxíngyǔ) 200
5.3.2 A case study: Chinese 客 -kè neologisms 202

5.4 On lexical differences among Sinitic languages 206

6 Topics in Chinese syntax 211

6.1 Word order 211
6.1.1 Word order in Old Chinese 212
6.1.2 Word order in Modern Chinese 215
6.1.3 Word order in Chinese dialects 222

6.2 Word order, subjecthood, and topichood 227
6.2.1 On the notion of 'subject' in Chinese 232
6.2.2 Some features of the topic in Chinese 238

6.3 Serial verb constructions 244
6.3.1 Serial verb constructions and grammaticalization 247

6.4 Tense and aspect 249
6.4.1 Lexical aspect 257
6.4.1.1 Aspect in resultative compounds 262

6.5 Argument structure: the case of resultative compounds 265

6.6 Word classes 270
6.6.1 Proposed criteria for establishing word classes in Chinese 279
6.6.1.1 Nouns and verbs 280
6.6.1.2 Adjectives 282
6.6.1.3 Prepositions 286

References 291
Index of languages and language families 333
Subject index 337