

CONTENTS

Chapter 1: “And Now for Something Completely Different”	1
I. From Dairy Farming to Jung	2
II. The Earth has a Soul	4
III. From Indigenous Cultures to the Western Worldview	8
IV. Re-Visioning our Relationship with Nature	13
V. Looking Ahead	20
Chapter 2: Jungian Ecopsychology	21
I. Archetypes and the Collective Unconscious	23
II. The Animal Soul in the Human Psyche	26
III. Dreams, Symbols, and the Two Million-Year-Old Man Within	30
IV. Individuation, the Organism, and the Self	35
V. Dynamic Systems Theory and Archetypes —21st Century Jung	46
VI. The Secret: Relating to the Autonomy of Archetypes and the Self	49
VII. Jung’s Answer to Job	54
VIII. A New Age of Greater Consciousness	70
IX. The Ails of Modern Life and the Loss of the Sacred in Nature	76
X. Jung’s Antidotes to Our Environmental Problems	81
XI. Synchronicity	87
XII. A Summary of Jungian Contributions to Ecopsychology	92

Chapter 3: A Necessary Vision	95
I. Connecting with Native Cultures, Connecting with the Land	98
II. Ecological Concepts in Psychotherapy	109
III. A Jungian Ecopsychological Framework for our Educational System	117
IV. Culture, Politics, and Economics	124
V. A Turning Point	128
Notes	131
Appendices
Appendix A: Psychology and Ecology	173
Appendix B: The Animal Soul, The Primordial Mind, and Archetypes	181
Appendix C: Self and Organism	190
Appendix D: The Alchemy of Psychoanalysis	196
References	209
Index	219